

I retired from British Telecom after over thirty seven years with the company in engineering and management. In addition, for a number of years I was a part time lecturer in telecommunications at the Highbury College of Technology.

I left BT as a senior manager responsible for a Service Centre .The centre served nationally all the needs of provision and maintenance of telecommunications requirements for High Technology and Consultant companies on a twenty four hour basis.

In wishing to put back something into the community on retirement I joined the CAG and was for eleven years a generalist adviser. For the last five years I have been a Trustee at the CAG. During this whole time I have had the privilege and enjoyed being able to help clients and the organisation in a way that hopefully has helped the citizens of Gosport.
